

MS03 VT11 FAQ Vaginal Discharge v1 540p

[Music]

When you find out that you're pregnant, you'll notice that a lot of hormonal changes happen, and one thing that also changes with your hormones is your vaginal discharge.

Increased vaginal discharge during pregnancy is very common. It is not a sign of anything wrong. Often it is just a sign of more cervical mucus being produced. However, if you ever have increasing discharge that is worrisome to you, that changes in color, that changes in odor or is causing you irritation, consult your healthcare provider and ask them and they will do a test and make sure it's not an infection or something you need to be concerned about.

[End of recording]